

HERBERT Y. MELTZER, M.D

Professor of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences, Pharmacology, and Physiology, Northwestern University

Herbert Y. Meltzer, MD, is a Professor of Psychiatry and Physiology and Director of the Translational Neuropharmacology Program at Northwestern University in Chicago, IL. He is also Director of the Schizophrenia Program of Centerstone Mental Health System in Nashville, and chair of the Young Investigator Grant Review Committee for NARSAD. He is chairman of the International Psychopharmacology Algorithm Project (www.IPAP.org).

Dr. Meltzer received his undergraduate degree from Cornell University, a master's degree in chemistry from Harvard University, and his medical degree from Yale University.

He is a leading researcher in the pharmacologic treatment of schizophrenia, Dr. Meltzer played an integral role in the discovery of clozapine, the first atypical antipsychotic to be approved by the US Food and Drug Administration. His research interests include suicide prevention and cognitive impairment in schizophrenia.

Dr. Meltzer is the recipient of the Efron Award and Paul Hoch Award of the ACNP, the Noyes Prize of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, the Edward J. Sachar Award from Columbia University, the Lieber Prize for Outstanding Achievement in Schizophrenia Research from NARSAD, the Stanley Dean Award for Research in Schizophrenia of the American College of Psychiatrists, the Gold Medal Award of the Society of Biological Psychiatry, the Earl Sutherland Prize for Achievement in Research from Vanderbilt University, the Research Prize of the American Psychiatric Association, the Grant W. Liddle Award for Clinical Research from Vanderbilt University, and the Lifetime Achievement Award of the Winter Workshop on Psychosis.