

THE AMERICAN LIVER FOUNDATION

The American Liver Foundation (ALF) was created in 1976 by the American Association for the Study of Liver Disease (AASLD). Their mission is to facilitate, advocate and promote education, support and research for the prevention, treatment and cure of liver disease.

ALF is a national organization advocating for those living with liver disease and their families, and provides education, support and research for the prevention, treatment and cure of liver disease, including hepatitis.

The foundation supports patients, funds medical research, educates medical professionals, and informs the public about the importance of liver health. Research is integral to the work of American Liver Foundation and is essential to improving treatment and finding cures. ALF envisions a day when liver disease is seldom found, easily cured, and when liver transplants are a thing of the past.

ALF joined the Tune In to Hep C campaign to help elevate awareness of chronic hepatitis C, an important public health issue.
