

Andrea Shin, MD
Indiana University School of Medicine

Andrea Shin, MD, is a practicing gastroenterologist and assistant research professor of medicine at Indiana University, Indianapolis.

Dr. Shin earned her undergraduate and medical degrees from Indiana University, where she also conducted her residency in internal medicine, before completing a post-doctorate research fellowship in clinical and translational science at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, MN.

Dr. Shin has been published widely in industry leading peer-reviewed journals, including Gastroenterology, Journal of Clinical Gastroenterology, and Digestive Diseases and Sciences, on topics such as relationships between obesity and stomach functions, irritable bowel syndrome (IBS) and gastroparesis.

Dr. Shin is a member of the American Gastroenterological Association, the American Medical Association, the American College of Gastroenterology, and the American Neurogastroenterology and Motility Society.

###