Comparing Medicare Plans to Save You Money

Medicare Open Enrollment is here. With plan premiums at historic lows, now's the time to review your coverage options

(Family Features) Medicare's Open Enrollment gives people with Medicare the opportunity to sign up for health or prescription drug plans, or make changes to their existing health plans or prescription drug plans for coverage beginning Jan. 1, 2021. But don't delay – Open Enrollment ends on Dec. 7, 2020.

Why compare plans for next year? Just as your health care needs can change from year to year, so do Medicare plans. While Medicare plans generally cover all Part A and Part B benefits, not all plans offer the same cost sharing or additional benefits. You may be able to find new extra benefits, save money – or both.

What's new this Open Enrollment?

Medicare plans in 2021 have historically low premiums – dropping an average of 34% over the last three years, and in some states dropping over 50%. There's never been a better time to go Medicare.gov and look at your options.

If you're among the 1 in 3 people with Medicare who has diabetes, here's some more good news: hundreds of prescription drug plans will be participating in a new insulin savings initiative, through which they'll offer a month's supply of a range of insulins for a copayment of $35 or less in 2021. If you take insulin and enroll in one of these plans, you could save an average of $446 per year on your out-of-pocket costs for insulin next year.

Here are some things to consider when shopping for Medicare plans:

- Check if your doctors are still in-network and your prescriptions are on the plan's formulary.
- The plan with the lowest monthly premium may not always be the best fit for your health needs.
- Look at the plan's deductible and other out-of-pocket costs that factor into your total costs.
- Some plans offer extra benefits, like vision, hearing or dental coverage, which could help meet your unique health care needs in 2021.
- If you take insulin, you may find a plan offering insulin for $35 or less for a 30-day supply.
